

POLICE DEPARTMENT MONTHLY REPORT

February 6, 2012

January hasn't seen a lot of activities, mainly meetings and planning for things to come later in the year. Rob is busy with school related activities and regular meetings with groups in town. We did meet with the Sheriff's Office and County/District court to discuss security issues as the county moves forward with moving the Sheriff's office and Jail operations.

January criminal reports continue consistent with winter month activities. Reported crimes are normally low during the winter months which allow officers time to work on their case assignments.

Nate and Josh both completed four years with the police department in January along well as Randy who completed 5 years.

On January 18th, 2012 Keith, Scott and Chuck met with Mark Juganti to begin discussions regarding a repeater site (building and tower) that he owns on Hwy 114. He wants to lease space or sell the equipment out right. Hwy 114 has a large section that is not covered by our current radio system and has been a concern for ambulance, fire and law enforcement when responding to accidents. Options will be reviewed by the Communications Board and then funding sought if they agree a new repeater site is warranted.

Dispatch's big event for the month was the participation of all 11 dispatch personnel, over a three day period, to attend training in Grand Junction titled "Complacency, Cannibalism & Critical Thinking". The training dealt with toxic work environments. Quite an intriguing training title; complacency and critical thinking rather self-explanatory, But, Cannibalism sounds kind of ominous. The term describes a variety of personalities and attitudes that tend to "eat up" personnel, time and morale within a communications center. Grand Junction was kind enough to allow the communication centers on west slope to attend tuition free, usually costs between $300 and $400 per student. We divided up the personnel and some worked while others attended and the reverse was true on other days. It was agreed an excellent training by all.
